KEYNOTE AUTHOR

DANI SHAPIRO IN CONVERSATION WITH MARION WINK

Best-selling author of Inheritance: A Memoir of Genealogy, Paternity & Love and The Weekly Reader commentator and author of The Baltimore Book of the Dead engage in a meaningful conversation about family secrets, the consequences and ethics of DNA testing, the urgent quest to unlock a story, and the discovery of not being who you think you are. A reading, conversation and book signing.

4:00PM - 5:30PM - AUDITORIUM

FEATURED SESSIONS

Master Class with playwright/novelist KIA CORTHRON

Diving into Stage Writing: Dialogue & Drama. Prose writers and playwrights may feel confident in their narrative skills but intimidated by the use of dialogue. How does "natural" dialogue in real life differ from that in literature? What are the ethical concerns in writing dialect? Writers sometimes avoid the dramatic – building tension – out of fear of committing the "sin" of melodrama. Corthron's novel The Castle Cross the Magnet Carter won the 2016 Center for Fiction First Novel Prize. Baltimore productions of her plays include Splash Hatch on the E Going Down at Center Stage and Force Continuum at Cohesion Theatre Company. She has written for The Jury and The Wire. 12:00PM - 1:30PM - BC207 ($10. Ticket access only.)

AKIBA SOLOMON and KENYRA RANKIN read and examine How We Fight White Supremacy: The Field Guide to Black Resistance with contributor Elissa Blount Moorhead

Colorlines' editorial directors and award-winning journalists present a timely collection, an urgent political text deemed a must-read for anyone new to resistance work, and for the next generation of leaders. 12:00pm - 1:00pm - Auditorium

ANGIE KIM discusses Miracle Creek with Vicky Pinpin-Feinstein

Kim's debut novel is about an experimental medical treatment device that patients enter for therapeutic "dives" with the hopes of curing issues like autism or infertility. A thriller on how far we'll go to protect our families and our deepest secrets. 1:00PM - 2:00PM - AUDITORIUM

The Art of Telling Lies Skillfully:

Writing Tips from an Award-winning Screenwriter

Brian Price demonstrates, through memorable clips and helpful diagrams, the essential elements that all successful movies share. He's written for major studios like Universal, Warner Bros., and Canal +, and for independent producers around the world, while his students have gone on to write for Amblin, Dreamworks, 20th Century Fox, and Netflix, and have even been nominated for Emmys and Golden Globes. His book Classical Storytelling and Contemporary Screenwriting is required reading in top screenwriting programs. 1:30PM - 2:30PM - BC207

10:00AM - 11:00AM - BC135

History's Mysteries: Shaping the Past into a Literary Now

How do writers use history to create contemporary literature? What research is required? How do they transform the past into stories, poems, novels and essays for today? What fidelity do they show to the historical record? Eugenia Kim, Shelley Puhak, Richard Slotkin, and Michael Downs represent multiple genres as they explore these questions and more, including history's ongoing role as a compelling and necessary subject for writers.

Truth & Trauma: How We Write Authentic Stories of Pain

Four writers across genres, Kristina Gaddy, Elizabeth Evitts Dickinson, Cija Jefferson, Wallace Lane and Neda Semani, write global and local stories of war, loss, death, illness, abuse, crime, and discuss researching and writing trauma, as well as the effect working with difficult subjects can have on a writer.

Possible & Impossible Futures

Jason Harris, Sarah Pinsker, Erin Roberts, and K.M. Szpara explore classic, recent, and upcoming near-future fictions and discuss the responsibilities and challenges of looking forward: utopias, dystopias, apocalypses, and hope.

11:00AM - 12:30PM - BC135

Your Classics Aren't My Classics: Decolonizing the Literary Canon for Asian Americans

What do Asian-Americans consider classics? How is it that the lack of media representation of Asians and Asian Americans has made it so that only white writers are ever considered canon? Fran Del Rosario, Chris Jesu Lee, Mekita Rivas, Marissa Rodriguez, Eliza Romero and Sharon Tran deconstruct the concept of a must-read as it applies to Asian Americans.

You Can't Live Off Air: Money's in the Room

Identity in Artistry: Exploring the Queer Perspective

Writers Jamie Grace Alexander, Mark King, and Clarence Orsi integrate their identities in a way that provides insight into their lived experiences as members of the LGBTQIA+ community. They have used their artistic medium to share their experiences and explore sexual identity, creating works that showcase an underrepresented perspective.

12:30PM - 2:00PM - BC143

No One Leaves Home Unless Home is the Mouth of a Shark: The Immigrant's Journey

Warsan Shire's poem "Home" shares the truths of many immigrants, migrants, and refugees in relation to leaving home. Why'd they leave? Why can't they return? Ana Portnoy Brimmer, Daria-Ann Martineau, Girum Seid Mulat, Senait Mulugeta, Lark Omura and Tatiana Figueroa Ramirez, poets originating from different parts of the world, including Ethiopia, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and Trinidad & Tobago, share their work and a piece of their story as someone "not from here," and how their home still speaks in their poetry.

1:00PM - 2:00PM - BC135

Breaking Down Bars: Stories that Challenge Mass Incarceration

Dr. Tara Betts, Tony Lewis, Jr. and Chris Wilson join voices, share excerpts from their books and discuss the flaws and biases in mass incarceration. These writers discuss how prisons cripple communities of color and poor people, extend the power of policing, and create economic dependence on the corporatized prisons. Their books, and other writings expose the inefficacies of the prison system, challenge the perspectives people have about mass incarceration, and offer a bit of hope.

1:30PM - 3:00PM - BC205

Novelists at Work: How to Structure a Novel & Walk Away Like a Boss Featuring Jung Yun, Susan Muaddi Darraj, Katia Ulysse, Lauren Francis Sharma and moderator Danuta Hinc. These writers share notes, observations, tips and reveal real-life challenges of creating flow on the page, making sense of the characters' lives they create and the whole messy ordeal of narrative logic, all told through the eyes and experiences of authors committed to the craft of fiction.

2:00PM - 3:30PM - BC135

What We Are: Speck, Good Hair, Vanilla Bean, Cinnamon & Pearl: When Words Make You Real

The anthology *The Beiging of America, Being Mixed Race in the 21*st Century takes on "race matters" and considers them through the firsthand accounts of mixed-race people in the United States including Chelsea Lemon Fetzer, Jackson Bliss, Francis Frost, Naomi Raquel Enright, and Herbert Harris, who unite with contributing editor Tara Betts in a reading and frank discussion "with unparalleled candor and unmatched honesty".

Poet This!

Based on Lucille Clifton's endearing phrase, "Why don't you poet that?" Ailish Hopper directs a panel of poets including Thea Brown, Sarah Browning, Tafisha Edwards, Tatiana Figueroa Ramirez, David Yezzi, Winniebell Xinyu Zong and Enoch Pratt Free Library / Little Patuxent Review's poetry contest winner Jalynn Harris, all at varying stages in their careers as poets.
